THE Act passed in 1536 for the dissolution of the lesser monasteries gave to Henry VIII. the ornaments, jewels, goods, and chattels, of such foundations, and although not specifically mentioned in the Act of 1539 for dissolving the greater monasteries, their goods were undoubtedly seized under it. There does not, however, appear to have been at that time any intention to disturb the parochial clergy in the possession of the goods belonging to their churches, notwithstanding that it was suggested by some of the preachers of the new doctrines and others that the goods and ornaments devoted to "superstitious uses" could with advantage be confiscated, while, on the other hand, the more conservative of the clergy gave out during the Aske rebellion that the King intended to rob them of the goods and vestments necessary for the performance of their ecclesiastical duties. As early as 1537 one Nicholas Holte deposed that while he was at Shrewsbury he heard it stated by John Cowper that the King intended to send down commissioners shortly to view the goods and jewels of all churches, and he was asked to use his influence in favour of the parishioners of St. Julian's Church there. He further stated that Cowper told him he had heard by letter from London that the King intended to have but one church where now were two, and in every parish but one chalice<sup>1</sup>. That these and like reports were generally current there can be little doubt from contemporary papers. The uncertainty also as to future religious doctrines, towards the close of the reign of Henry VIII., raised a somewhat natural feeling in the minds of many that if the ecclesiastical possessions were to be alienated from the Church, the donors or their representatives had a better title to them than the Crown. It was partly this feeling and the general insecurity of church property which led to the appropriation and embezzlement of much of the church goods, especially those of the chantries, chapels, guilds, and such like foundations. To avoid this and to replenish an almost exhausted treasury, it was determined to suppress the chantries, guilds, and other foundations which were established for purposes contrary to those then considered orthodox, and in accordance with an Act of 1545 commissions were issued for the survey of these foundations, their goods, and possessions. Many inventories of church goods were taken under this Act, those for the Counties of Durham and Northumberland being here printed; as explained, however, in the preface to the volume of this society, dealing with the certificates of chantries, guilds, etc., for Yorkshire, few, if any chantries were then dissolved, and probably none of the plate and other goods were seized till the return of the certificates by the Commissioners appointed under the Act of 1547, reviving most of the provisions of the former Act for the dissolution of the chantries.

(1) Letters and Papers, Henry VIII., vol. 12, p. 358.

It is not so clear how the goods belonging to the chantries were to be disposed of, as it was with regard to those of the parochial churches. The plate appears to have been carried to the Jewel House in the Tower of London, from whence portions of it were from time to time taken to the Mint to be converted into coin. What quantity of the precious metals was obtained from this source is uncertain but the amount must have been something very considerable, seeing that during the latter part of the year 1550 orders were issued by the Privy Council for the delivery to the Mint of between one and two thousand ounces of gold, and not very far short of one hundred thousand ounces of silver, which were required for the expedition into Scotland and the payment of the garrisons at Calais and elsewhere. Much delay seems to have occurred in sending in the plate seized under this Act, and long after the chantries had been dissolved, their goods seized and much of their lands granted out, new commissions were issued and reports and returns made concerning their goods and plate, even so late as up to the last years of Mary's reign. The commissioners acted entirely independently to those who dealt with the parochial church goods and under separate and less explicit instructions. The amount of embezzlement of chantry goods seems also to have far exceeded that of the parochial churches.

As the sequence of the commissions issued at the time of the Reformation, for the survey of parochial church goods, is somewhat confused, it has been thought that it may be useful to set out here the order in which they came. The first was issued in 1547, and addressed to the bishops, a return being made for each diocese. The purpose for which the inventories made under this commission were taken, it was alleged, was that the goods might be preserved to the use of the church, and there seems to have been a certain amount of sincerity in this assertion, for among the Privy Council papers will be found many orders to persons to return ecclesiastical plate and other goods which had been carried away. The people, however, in some places viewed with suspicion this visitation by the King's commissioners, imagining that it was only preliminary to the fate which had befallen the monastic possessions and to that with which the chantries were then threatened. Many of the certificates to these commissions were not returned till the reign of Edward VI., and amongst these was that for the diocese of Chester<sup>1</sup>, dated 12th January, 1547-8, which makes a return of the ornaments that had been taken away, sold, or alienated, and by whom and to what uses the money derived from such sale had been appropriated. From that part of the certificate which refers to Yorkshire, we learn that the goods of no churches in the Deanery of Richmond had been alienated; in the Deanery of Catterick, however, it is returned that a chalice belonging to the church of Bedale was sold for 40s. and the proceeds used for the repair of the church; at Well certain goods were sold for building a school house and mending the bells. In the other deaneries but few of the churches had been despoiled of their goods, and in cases where they had, it was to some extent for a proper purpose, such as the repair of the church, building of a school (as at Catton), for the maintenance of a suit at law, or for payment of the debts of the church. Very few certificates taken under this commission are known to exist, some are among the episcopal records of certain dioceses, but that for Chester is the only one at the Public Record Office.

The next set of commissions for the making of inventories of parochial church goods was issued about the 15th February, 1549, to the sheriff and justices of the peace of each county, and sets out that whereas the King had been advertised that a great number of the King's subjects, forgetting their bounden duties of obedience, have presumed, contrary to his highness' commandment, to alien and sell away the vestments, plate, jewells, and ornaments, and in many cases the bells of their churches and chapels, applying the money thereof either to their own uses or to such other private uses as they themselves listed, by occasion whereof much contention and variance hath been and daily doth grow and arise in sundry places, amongst his Majesty's subjects. His Majesty minding to have a speedy order or stay set herein, in all places, etc., has appointed the said sheriff and justices of the peace jointly and severally to be his Commissioners in the said county for this purpose. And for the better doing whereof his Majesty's pleasure is, that the commissioners assembling themselves together in some convenient place within their shire and considering well the effect of these letters, then do out of hand take order for their division into such several hundreds, parts, and quarters of their shire as both for their own commodities and the speedier executing of the charge committed to them, shall be thought most meet, and being so divided, they shall severally call before them the parson or vicar, if he be resident, or else the curate and churchwardens, with three or four others of the discreetest and most substantial men of every parish within the circuit appointed to them, and making a true inventory of all manner of vestments, ornaments, plate, jewels, and bells belonging to every church or chapel within their several precincts, they shall leave in every of the said parishes one inventory, so made, subscribed both with the hands of the commissioners for that part of the shire and also with the hands of the said parsons, vicars, or in their absence with the curates, churchwardens, or other the honest men of every parish, and one other like inventory subscribed both by the said commissioners and also the said parson, vicar, or curate and the churchwardens and other the honest men, to leave in the keeping of the custos rotulorum of the shire. After the making of which inventories his Majesty's further pleasure is that the commissioners shall give in charge, to the said parson curates and parishioners of every such church that they presume not to alien, sell, or otherwise put away or give their assents to any such sale, alienation, or putting away of any of the said vestments, plate, jewels, bells, or other ornaments, in anywise but to see that the same be safely kept and preserved, as they will answer for the contrary at their uttermost perils.

And in case either or any of them or any other of the parishioners after knowledge of his Majesty's pleasure in this behalf, attempt any sale, gift, or alienation of any of the premises, that in that case the said parson, curate, churchwardens, or other honest men do give notice thereof to each of the justices of the peace as dwell nigh the said parish, upon complaint or knowledge whereof by any other means, his Majesty's pleasure is, the said justices shall take undelayed order for the stay of any such sale or alienation, to commit the chief attempters thereof to prison for such time as shall be thought convenient. And for such plate, jewels, ornaments, bells, or lead as have been alienated contrary to his Majesty's said commandments at any time within one year before the date hereof, except the said alienation was made by the common assent of the parish and the money thereof applied to any common good use by the like assent, his Majesty's pleasure is, they shall cause the said goods or the value thereof to be restored, and such as shall refuse to abide the orders therein, to signify their names to the Crown, whereupon such further orders shall be given as shall appertain. And for their better instruction herein they might require of the Bishop's officers a copy of the inventories heretofore made for every parish in that shire. Finally his Majesty's pleasure is, that after the making of the said inventories there shall be made a short extract or abridgement only of the plate and bells of every parish, and the same, gathered together for this same shire, to be sent up with a further declaration of their doing in this behalf.

A few returns to this commission are now extant but none for the three northern counties here dealt with exist at the Public Record Office, but as the certificates contain a mere summary of the proceedings of the commissioners and of the inventories they took, they are not of very great value. They gave, however, some security against the embezzlement of the church goods, for instead of parishioners and churchwardens disposing of their goods as before they had done, they now had to obtain the permission of the Council. Amongst others we find that licence was in this way given to the parishioners of Sandwich to sell their church plate for the repair of their haven, to Cheddar for scouring the river, to Fobbing in Essex for repairs of their church, and to the inhabitants of Jersey for building fortifications.

Notwithstanding the vast sums which had come into the Treasury by the confiscation of ecclesiastical property the government of the period was quite unable to meet the heavy calls which were at this time being made upon it, and on 3rd March, 1551 it was ordered by the Privy Council "that for as much as the King's Majestie had neede presently of a mass of money, therefore commissions should be addressed unto all shires of Englande to take into the King's handes suche church plate as remaineth, to be employed unto his highness use." Nothing, however, seems to have been done upon this order till nearly a year later when on 29th January, 1552, a letter was addressed to each custos rotulorum throughout England directing him to deliver the inventories of the church goods in his custody, which were taken under the commissions of 1549 to the commissioners then about to be appointed. We next come to the first of the commissions printed at the beginning of this volume and dated 16th May, 1552, which makes the old charge that the goods were being stolen, and directed the commissioners to again make inventories of the goods and compare them with those previously taken. The commissioners, however, were only to make inventories which were to be returned to the Lords of the Council, and had no power to seize the goods. They were to inquire as to goods stolen or taken away and had authority to commit to prison those who refused to obey their commands. Most of the inventories of church goods preserved at the Public Record Office were taken under this commission. Those for the East Riding of Yorkshire and for Northumberland were made in the middle of August and the certificate for the former was returned on 24th November 1552, and those for the West Riding were made in October and November. There are no returns for the North Riding or for Durham under this commission, now extant at the Public Record office. The commissioners having completed their work, a new commission was on 16th January, 1553, addressed to Sir Richard Cotton, controller of the household, Sir John Gate, vice-chamberlain, Sir John Bowes, master of the rolls, Sir John Baker, Sir John Mason, Sir Walter Mildmay, John Lucas, and Thomas Mildmay who were to see that the previous commission had been properly carried out, and to collect and bring together all ready money, plate, and jewels certified by the former commissioners to be remaining in any churches or chapels.

The money so found was to be delivered to Sir Edmund Peckham, cofferer of the household and treasurer of the mint, and the plate and jewels to the master of the jewel-house. The commissioners were also authorized to hand over by indenture to the incumbent and churchwardens, for the administration of the Holy Communion, in every cathedral or collegiate church one or two chalices at their discretion, and in like manner, in every great parish church, one or two chalices, and in every small parish church or chapel, one chalice. Sufficient ecclesiastical linen, surplices, etc., for the use of the churches were to be left, and the remainder to be distributed to the poor, whilst the copes, vestments, altar clothes, and other ornaments, and all parcels of metal (except great bells and saunce bells) were to be sold. They further had power to appoint other commissioners to act in counties distant from London, who were to make certificates to them, and if thought more desirable commissions were to be issued by the Crown to such persons. In accordance with the last mentioned clause of the commission, on 16th of February, 1553, the Privy Council directed the Lord Chancellor to cause commissions to be passed, appointing commissioners for this purpose in every shire, and, the necessities of the Crown being urgent, the commissions were to be executed with all speed.

The commissioners appointed for the City of York were William Coupland, the mayor, Sir Leonard Beckwith, and Sir William Fairfax, who, we find by the indentures made by them with the incumbents and churchwardens, left, in exact accordance with the terms of the commissions, one chalice and from one to four bells<sup>1</sup>. It is curious to note in these indentures that the words one chalice of silver are in many instances followed by and a paten, in each case either crossed through or erased as though it was at first intended to leave a paten but subsequently determined not to do so. We have also the certificate<sup>2</sup> dated 26th May, 1553, of Sir George Conyers, Sir Thomas Hilton, William Bellassis, and Richard Vincent, the commissioners appointed for the county of Durham, who appear to have given their commission a more liberal interpretation than the commissioners for the City of York, for it will be found that to most of the churches they returned one or more chalices and patens and several bells, pairs of organs were also left at many of the churches.

(1) See p. 87 et seq.

(2) See p. 141, et seq.

There was altogether left in the churches, in the county of Durham, a thousand and eighty-three ounces of plate, two hundred and six great bells, twelve saunce bells, seventy-four hand bells, and seventy-one sacring bells<sup>1</sup>. The goods seized and the proceeds of those sold were handed for transmission to London, to Richard Vincent, of Smeton, a commissioner, by indenture dated the day previous to the certificate. In all, there were sent to London, from the county of Durham, in ready money, 60*l.*, in plate parcel gilt, three hundred and forty ounces, in plate double gilt, two hundred and sixty-six ounces (being altogether six hundred and six ounces), two copes of cloth of gold, two vestments and four tunicles of the same. Richard Vincent seems to have arrived at the Jewel House in the Tower on 12th June, where he delivered to the King's use the said 60*l.*, one cope, a vestment, and two tunicles of cloth of tissue raised with crimson velvet and orphrayed with needlework of imagery, also one cope, a vestment, and two tunicles of old cloth of gold raised with red velvet pearled and orphrayed with needlework of imagery. The silver chalices and other plate weighing six hundred and six ounces were handed in undefaced, and in the presence of Sir Francis Jobson, the master and treasurer of the Jewel House, the said Vincent and other officers, it was all defaced, which appears to mean that it was put into the melting pot, with the result that only five hundred and twenty-four ounces of silver remained.<sup>2</sup>

Much difficulty was experienced in many places in obtaining a sale for the vestments, goods, and ornaments which were to be disposed of locally. This, however, does not appear to have been the case with regard to the three northern counties here dealt with, for before the end of June, 1553, the commission had been executed in all its terms.

A change in the political world soon took place, Edward VI. died on 6th July, 1553, and at his death the entirely opposite views of his sister in religious matters altered the aspect of affairs. What had been done could not be undone. Where the goods had been sold and the chalices melted down they could not be returned to the churches, but in cases where the goods had not been disposed of they were to be delivered back to the churches, and orders dated from August to December, 1553, were from time to time sent into various counties (including Essex, London, Norfolk, Lancaster, Somerset, Dorset, and the City of Salisbury) where there had been delay in the execution of the commission, to re-deliver the goods to the churches in the respective counties. It would seem that in Westmoreland the whole of the plate was re-delivered to the churches by warrant from Stephen Gardener, Bishop of Winchester and Lord Chancellor, dated 22nd October, 1553<sup>1</sup>.

(1) Land Revenue, Bille, 1393, No. 39.

(2) Land Revenue, Bille, 1393, No. 36.

Mary and her council, however, did not scruple to make use of the silver which had been melted down or defaced, and the price of the goods sold, and she even went so far as to give an order for a gratuity of twenty marks to be given to Miles Fairfax and William Whip, deputy commissioners for the North Riding, for their charges and pains in collecting the church goods. Early in 1554, a return was made of all the plate that had been delivered into the Jewel House between 1st June, 1553, and 4th February, 1554, by which we find that for the whole of England there were seven thousand two hundred and thirty-two and a quarter ounces of silver and one hundred and ninety-two and three-quarter ounces of gold, probably worth rather more than 14,500*l.*, a considerable sum for that time, representing a good deal over a quarter of a million at the present day.

The question as to what became of the parochial goods is one of interest and can, to a certain extent, be answered by various documents at the Public Record Office. The<sup>2</sup> plate not left in the churches, was sent up to the Jewel House in the Tower, where it was melted down, the vestments (except those of special value such as of cloth of gold) and all metal work, other than plate, were sold in the county, and the linen was given to the poor, while the lead and bells were stored at some central town, generally a port, to be disposed of from time to time as occasion arose. A large quantity of the lead and bells stored at Newcastle was appropriated by the expedition to Scotland, the lead being converted into bullets and shot and used for fortifying certain towers, and the bells turned into guns<sup>1</sup>. A great deal of the lead was also exported to the Low Countries, principally to Sir Thomas Gresham, the King's agent at Antwerp, and various orders touching such exportation, will be found among the acts of the Privy Council in and about 1552. There was evidently a good market for the sale of such metals abroad for about the same year, Thomas Egerton petitioned the Crown that he might take all the bell metal, latten, copper and brass, which should fall into the King's hands within two years, at 18s. a hundred-weight, upon condition, that he might export them free of custom<sup>2</sup>. It does not appear that his petition was granted.

(1) Land Revenue, Bdle. 1393, No. 145.

(2) Mr. J. A. Froude's assertion in his history of England that knights and squires drank their claret out of chalices and watered their horses in marble coffins (Vol. v. p. 120) is more picturesque than accurate. Such things may have happened after the seizure of the Monastic Church goods, but not after that of the parochial property.

Some of the inventories included in this volume, have already been printed, but it has been thought better to reprint them in order to make the work complete.

It is much to be regretted that the returns for the West Riding are in so bad a condition, and those for the North Riding, Durham, and Northumberland are so meagre. A glossary of terms used in this volume is given, in which attention is called to peculiarities of the objects described, occurring in the inventories here printed.

Like many others engaged upon similar work I have felt the loss of our late secretary's kindly sympathy and widespread knowledge, in preparing this volume for the press.

ALB. A vestment similar to a surplice, but longer and with tight sleeves, worn at the celebration of mass.

ALMERY, see Aumbrey.

ALTAR CLOTHS. These we find were made of linen, diaper, cloth of gold, etc.

AMICE. A piece of linen worn by those serving at the altar, put on at first over the head and afterwards arranged round the neck. It has an ornamental strip of embroidery along one edge, which disposed itself in the manner of a collar.

ANTIPHON, p. 76, this should probably be an antiphonar, or book of anthems.

ARK, see Chest.

AUMBREY, ALMERY, a cupboard.

BANNER CLOTHS, used in processions, p. 99, 101, 105.

BAWDKIN, a kind of cloth of gold.

BAWDRIC, BALDRIC, A bell rope, also a band or girdle (p. 32).

BERAL, BERYL, A precious stone or crystal, used in the ceremony of the New Fire on Easter Even.

BIBLE, see Books.

BOOKS. The books most common in these inventories are Mass Books, of which there are mention of about 50, mostly at the chantries in the counties of Durham and Northumberland. A mass book at Thirkleby was taken to the church of York (p. 9). Some of the Mass Books are described as being of paper and some of parchment. At Bridlington was the Book of Communion, or Order of Communion approved by Convocation in 1547. Bibles, both in Latin and English, are met with, but not very frequently, there being only some dozen of them mentioned in these inventories, shewing that the proclamation issued by Henry VIII. in 1541 for a Bible to be placed in every church could not have been everywhere obeyed. Besides these, there are some nine Paraphrases of Erasmus. There are four copies of the Book of Common Prayer (pp. 26, 30, 105). At Calverly was a copy of the Injunctions, and we have mention of six Psalters, two of which were in English (pp. 31, 63, 99, 105, 163) and four books of Homilies (pp. 30, 63, 99, 105). Dewsbury is the only place where the parochial registers of births, deaths, and marriages, are returned, and at Elvington were two graels or graduals, and a processional. At the chantry of St John the Baptist and Evangelist in the parish church of St Oswald in Durham, were, besides a Mass Book, the Life of John Wharton and the Meditatio Vitæ Christi (p. 125).

BROCHE, the morse or clasp for a cope (p. 139).

BUSTIAN, a cotton cloth allied to fustian.

CANDLESTICKS. It appears from these inventories that there were usually two candlesticks in each church, but occasionally three and sometimes four. They were generally made of latten or brass, and a few of pewter, iron, copper, tin, or wood. At Leekonfield there was a standing candlestick of iron (p. 64). It will be noticed that the chrismatory, cross, and candlesticks were often of the same metal.

<sup>1</sup> The notes of the materials, etc. of which the various church goods were made, are taken from the inventories here printed. In compiling this Glossary use has been made of The Draper's Dictionary, by Mr. S. W. Beck. The Glossary has been revised and much assistance kindly rendered by Mr. W. H. St. John Hope, M.A.

CHAIRS. Doncaster is the only place where chairs are mentioned in these inventories.

CENSER. A vessel in which incense is burnt. Censers were generally of latten or brass, but we also find them of pewter and tin.

CHALICES. These were mostly of silver, either gilt or parcel gilt, weighing from two to twenty or twenty-five ounces, they were occasionally embossed with lead (pp. 144, 145) and sometimes the cup only was of silver, the stem being of tin or some other metal (pp. 33, 134). Very interesting is the note of the golden chalice, set with rubies and emeralds, at York Minster, which weighed forty-six ounces and a half, and which Lady Jane Gray, during her brief rule, took out of the Jewel House and presented to the Earl of Shrewsbury (p. 168). A very large proportion of the chalices in the smaller churches were of tin, and this is especially noticeable in Northumberland. We also find chalices of copper, gilt and ungilt (pp. 19, 30, 106, 165) and at the chantry of St John the Baptist and Evangelist in Gateshead was a chalice made of a shell (p. 149). It is curious to notice that there is mention of only one or two patens throughout the inventories of church plate for the East Riding (see Preface p. xv.) This is possibly explained by the fact that the term "chalice" included "paten."

CHAMLET OR CAMLET. A fine woollen material used for vestments. It is described as of various colours, and also of white, ornamented with flowers (p. 161).

CHASUBLE. A vestment used by the priest at Mass, of various materials and colours, such as of silk, of red velvet, of green satten, and of worsted.

CHESTS, COFFERS, OR ARKS, probably for holding books and vestments, existed in many of the churches, sometimes there were two or three in one church. At Rillington were three Flanders chests (p. 16).

CHRISMATORY. A vessel for holding chrism or holy oil. Generally made of latten, but also of brass, lead, silver, tin, copper, pewter, and bone.

CIPRESS. A material probably similar to crape. At Ruston was a cope of green satin cipress (p. 56).

CLOTH OF TISSUE. A material similar to cloth of gold.

COD. A pillow.

CODWARE, COGWARE. A woollen cloth similar to frieze.

COPE. A vestment like a cloak or cape, usually worn in processions. Copes were made of various materials and colours, such as of bustian, white velvet, silk flowered with gold, black dornix with flowers in red, of yellow tinsel silk, of yellow fustian embroidered, of linen cloth painted, of blue with flowers, barred with white and blue, etc. See Vestments.

CORPORAX OR CORPORAL. The linen cloth upon which the elements were consecrated. Corporals were usually in pairs, and were always kept in cases of varying degrees of richness. Thus, we have in these inventories corporax cases covered with velvet, of red satin, of cloth of gold on one side and blue on the other, of purple velvet, of say, and of dornix.

CREWELL. Lightly twisted worsted.

CROSS. The crosses are usually of latten or copper, but they are also described as of tin, brass, wood, copper, lead, wood plated with latten, of latten with an image of silver (p. 37), of wood with bars of latten.

CROSS CLOTH. A cloth to veil the Cross during Lent.

CRUETS. Vases for holding the wine and water used at the Mass. At the cathedral church of Durham they were of silver gilt, but elsewhere they were of pewter, tin, or lead.

DORNIX. A coarse damask, often used for vestments.

DUBLERS. Basins or bowls.

EVERY, i.e. Ivory.

FANNEL. A fanon or maniple. It was originally a strip of linen worn on the left wrist, but was in later times made of silk and richly embroidered and even jewelled.

FRONT CLOTH. A frontal. See Hangings for the altar.

FUNT CLOTH. A cloth to cover the font.

GLASS, A GREAT, on the altar at Pocklington (p. 67).

HANGINGS FOR THE ALTAR, FRONT CLOTHS, OR VANDROS. These were of linen, silk, satin, taffaty, velvet, or tapestry, and often consisted of an upper frontal or reredos, and a nether frontal which hung before the altar itself. At Pocklington there were two painted hangings and two of blue silk. The vandos, vandros, or frontal, and the reredos, redros, or super frontal were apparently usually of the same material and design (pp. 74, 163, etc.)

HOLY WATER VAT OR FAT. A vessel for carrying the holy water, generally made of brass, but occasionally of latten, lead, bell-metal, or copper. A holy water vat of stone was left by the Commissioners in Darlington Church (p. 142).

HOUSLING-CLOTH. A linen cloth held before communicants.

LAVER. A vessel to hold water. There was one of brass at Morpeth (p. 165).

MASER OR MAZER, a drinking bowl, of spotted wood, usually maple, with a metal band round the edge. It often had a device or "print" in the bottom.

MITRE. There were mitres at York and Durham (pp. 139, 168).

OIL BOX. The Chrismatory. At Burton Agnes there was one of silver (pp. 29, 65).

ORGANS, PAIRS OF. These were fairly frequent in Yorkshire, but not so in the counties of Durham and Northumberland. At St. Margaret's Church, Durham, the Commissioners left a pair of organs (p. 142).

OVERSEA WORK. Goods made out of Great Britain.

PARRETTES. The same as apparels, pieces of embroidery with which the alb, amice, and chasuble were enriched.

PANE METAL. Probably a base metal similar to latten.

PAX. A tablet kissed by the priest and people at the celebration of mass after the Agnus Dei. Usually made of latten or wood, but also of silver, copper, tin, lead, and glass.

PECTORAL. A plate of precious metal worn by a bishop over the chasuble at mass. There was a very ornamental one at York (p. 168).

PIX OR PYX. A box in which the Sacrament was reserved for the sick. The pixes are mostly of latten, copper, or brass, many were of ivory or ivory covered with silver (pp. 41, 43, 52, 53, 55), and some of silver, tin, or wood.

PORTES. A breviary (p. 163).

PYE CLOTH. Probably for pyxcloth, the linen cloth or veil within which the pyx was hung.

RACHET. A rochet, a sleeveless surplice worn by the clerk.

REREDOS. The super frontal or covering to the wall at the back of the altar. Those mentioned throughout the inventories here printed were of some textile fabric. See hangings for the altar.

REVEN BELL. A cracked bell.

RUSSELLS. A kind of satin.

SABBATYNES. Slippers (p. 138).

SATIN IN BURGYS, BRIDGES, ETC. A special kind of satin made at Bruges.

SAY OR SEA. A woollen material similar to serge. Stow Say was probably named after Stow in Suffolk.

SHIP. The vessel in which incense was kept.

SENDAL, CENDAL. A material made of silk.

SUPER ALTAR. A small portable consecrated stone slab used to lay on unconsecrated altars at mass.

SYNDALLS. Sandals, a pair of them mentioned on p. 138.

TACHE. A button.

TAFFETY OR TAFFETA. A material made of plain woven silk.

TOWELS. These were used at the altar and were made of linen, twill, and diaper

TUNICLE. The vestment worn by the deacon and sub-deacon at Mass.

VANDROS, VENDEOS. See Hangings for the altar.

VERGER RODS. Two of these were at Durham Cathedral and were left there by the Commissioners (pp. 137, 142).

VESTMENTS. Properly the garments used by the clergy at the services of the church. A "vestment" usually included the amice, alb, girdle, stole, fanon, and chasuble and sometimes the dalmatic and tunicle (or pair of tunicles as they were often called) with the amices, albs, girdles, and fanons for the gospeller or epistoler, and a stole for the deacon. A complete or "entire" vestment also included in addition one or more copes, together with the altar hangings and curtains and other ornaments used at or about the altar. Some of them mentioned in these inventories were extremely ornamental: we have them described as of linen cloth flowered (p. 10), of wrought silk with flowers, of red velvet, of white twill for Lent (p. 65), of bustian, of white velvet, of say, of silk, of worsted, of white satin, of blue damaske, of dornix, of sarsenet, of green sendall, of chamlet, of taffety, of crewells, and of fustian. Sometimes they were worked with patterns of beasts, flowers, etc., such as white swans, rabbits (p. 65), verses of gold (p. 31), leopards (p. 102), vines, lions, griffins, poppinjays, and fleurs de lis (pp. 137—141).

WORSTED. A woollen cloth. St Thomas' worsted (p. 61) is mentioned in the Draper's Dictionary by Mr. S. W. Beck.

THE SURTEES SOCIETY.

REPORT FOR THE YEAR M.DCCC.XCVII.

SINCE the last Report was published the Surtees Society has suffered a severe loss by the death of its late Secretary, the Rev. James Raine, D.C.L. Durham, and Canon and Chancellor of York, who died at York, on May 20th, 1896.

He was appointed Secretary to the Society in December, 1854, in succession to his father, the author of "North Durham," and one of the founders of the Surtees Society, and was confirmed in the office at the General Meeting in June following. During his tenure of office the Society increased in numbers and prosperity, and to his judgment and knowledge the large series of valuable books produced by the Society is mainly due.

He was the editor, in whole or in part, of fourteen volumes, and his assistance and advice are acknowledged in nearly every volume which appeared during the time he held the office of Secretary. Some of the most popular and useful of the publications of the Society, as the Richmondshire Wills, the Testamenta Eboracensia, and the Fabric Rolls of York Minster, were edited by him. His magnum opus, however, is the History of the Priory of Hexham, which gives evidence in the introduction and notes of his great wealth of knowledge, set out with a lucidity and vividness which is rarely found in antiquarian writers.

Amongst the numerous works produced by him it is only necessary to mention "Letters from Northern Registers," "Historians of the Church of York," and "Lives of the Archbishops of York," edited by him for the Rolls Series, and which are indispensable to all interested in the early history of the North of England.

The late Secretary's loss will be most severely felt at York, where his accurate and extensive knowledge of the archiepiscopal and city records rendered his services invaluable to all enquirers amongst those extensive and little known series of documents. Mr. William Brown, of Arncliffe, has been appointed Secretary in succession to the late Canon Raine.

Owing to the late Secretary's long illness the publications of the Society have fallen considerably in arrears, but it is expected that before the close of the present year all the volumes up to 1897 will be in the hands of members. Four volumes have been issued since the last Report was published. No. 94 is a volume of Yorkshire Fines in the reign of John, edited by the Secretary, which will take the place of an English Miscellany, to have been edited by Canon Raine. No. 95 contains documents illustrating the parochial history of St. Giles, Durham. In No. 96 Dr. Collins has printed a list of the Freemen of York from 1270 to 1558, with a very full index of all names, a book which will be most valuable to genealogists and persons interested in the origin of family names. No. 97 contains a list of the church plate for the three northern counties at the time of the Reformation. A revaluation of the stock in hand has been made, and the prices have been considerably reduced. The Society has only three complete sets of its works. Should any member wish to purchase any of the volumes he must communicate with the Secretary, through whom alone the sale can be made.

THE SURTEES SOCIETY,

ESTABLISHED IN THE YEAR 1834,

IN honour of the late Robert Surtees, of Mainsforth, Esquire, the author of the History of the County Palatine of Durham, and in accordance with his pursuits and plans ; having for its object the publication of inedited Manuscripts, illustrative of the intellectual, the moral, the religious, and the social condition of those parts of England and Scotland included on the east between the Humber and the Firth of Forth, and on the west between the Mersey and the Clyde, a region which constituted the ancient Kingdom of Northumbria.

NEW RULES AGREED UPON IN 1849 ; REVISED 1863.

I.—The Society shall consist of not more than three hundred and fifty members.

II.—There shall be a Patron of the Society, who shall be President.

III.—There shall be twenty-four Vice-Presidents, a Secretary, and two Treasurers.

IV.—The Patron, the Vice-Presidents, the Secretary, and the Treasurers, shall form the Council, any five of whom, including the Secretary and a Treasurer, shall be a quorum competent to transact the business of the Society.

V.—The twenty-four Vice-Presidents, the Secretary, and the Treasurers, shall be elected at a general meeting, to continue in office for three years, and be capable of re-election.

VI.—Any vacancies in the office of Secretary or Treasurers shall be provisionally filled up by the Council, subject to the approbation of the next general meeting.

VII.—Three meetings of the Council shall be held in every year, on the first Tuesday in the months of March, June, and December ; and the place and hour of meeting shall be fixed by the Council, and communicated by the Secretary to the members of the Council.

VIII.—The meeting in June shall be the Anniversary, to which all the members of the Society shall be convened by the Secretary.

IX.—The Secretary shall convene extraordinary meetings of the Council, on a requisition to that effect, signed by not less than five members of the Council, being presented to him.

X.—Members may be elected by ballot at any of the ordinary meetings, according to priority of application, upon being proposed in writing by three existing members. One black ball in ten shall exclude.

XI.—Each member shall pay in advance to the Treasurer the annual sum of one guinea. If any member's subscription shall be in arrear for two years, and he shall neglect to pay his subscription after having been reminded by the Treasurer, he shall be regarded as having ceased to be a member of the Society.

XII.—The money raised by the Society shall be expended in publishing such compositions, in their original language, or in a translated form, as come within the scope of this Society, without limitation of time with reference to the period of their respective authors. All editorial and other expenses to be defrayed by the Society.

XIII.—One volume, at least, in a closely printed octavo form, shall be supplied to each member of the Society every year, free of expense.

XIV.—If the funds of the Society in any year will permit, the Council shall be at liberty to print and furnish to the members, free of expense, any other volume or volumes of the same character, in the same or a different form.

XV.—The number of copies of each publication, and the selection of a printer and publisher, shall be left to the Council, who shall also fix the price at which the copies, not furnished to members, shall be sold to the public.

XVI.—The armorial bearings of Mr. Surtees, and some other characteristic decoration connecting the Society with his name, shall be used in each publication.

XVII.—A list of the officers and members, together with an account of the receipts and expenses of the Society, shall be made up every year to the time of the annual meeting, and shall be submitted to the Society to be printed and published with the next succeeding volume.

XVIII.—No alteration shall be made in these rules, except at an annual meeting. Notice of any such alteration shall be given, at least as early as the ordinary meeting of the Council immediately preceding, to be communicated to each member of the Society.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE SURTEES SOCIETY,

WITH THEIR RESPECTIVE SALE PRICES.
